Light from the center of our galaxy takes 26,000 years to reach Earth.

When the light we observe now left the center of the Milky Way, our human ancestors were beginning to weave plant fibers to make cords and baskets.